

Detroit Free Press www.freep.com

7-DAY ST

NEWS SPORTS ENTERTAINMENT BUSINESS FEATURES OPINION ARCHIVES

More Super Bowl Diary

- Super Bowl declared a success
- Deluge of visitors getting a good send-off at airport

Today's top stories

- NEW ORLEANS: Bouncing back
- THE PISTONS' SPIELBERG?
- Anime meets hip-hop at the DFT
- King mourners praise, challenge
- WEAKNESS: Wings' No. 1 vulnerability is goatending

SUPER BOWL DIARY

Inside the Maxim party: What's up with the sander?

February 4, 2006

Email this Print this

10:15-11:15 p.m.: Maxim party, Max M. Fisher Music Center:

PHOTO GALLERIES:

Maxim Party

A skimpily clad crowd waited hours for Maxim to open the doors to its "Rock City Opera"-themed party, easily one of the most-anticipated bashes of Super Bowl weekend.

Once ID'd and strapped into wristbands, guests were greeted by girls in short-shorts on rollerskates, a woman swinging above the crowd, and celebrities -- including Doug Savant of "Desperate Housewives," Jim Belushi of "According to Jim" and Kyle MacLachlan (Charlotte's beau on "Sex and the City.")

Guests saw a woman in short-shorts and knee-high boots swinging through hoops above the crowd.

Elsewhere, they saw a woman with sparks coming off her body. How? She was clad in a full-metal bodysuit and armed with a sander that she rubbed up against herself, sending sparks flying.

And as if that were not enough -- there was another woman walking the party in stilts.

By Free Press staff

Email this
Print this

Reach more than 2 million readers each week.

Advertise in The Detroit News and Free Press - in print and on the Internet.

mihomehunt.com

Advertise